

PBS does not have enough liberal programs to offset the many conservative programs it now has. Bill Moyer's NOW will be going from 60 minutes to 30 minutes when he retires. Instead of adding another liberal program to compensate for the lost air time, you have added Tucker Carlson: Unfiltered, a conservative show. This country is so divided now between the Republicans and Democrats, you have an obligation to represent both points of view on your local public station. We have, for many years, financially supported PBS with our yearly donations. Next year I will reconsider renewing my membership. I'll let the conservatives support their station.
